

Sheep Brain Dissection Preparation

IAP 9.97, 2003

Before your sheep brain dissection, please look over the following web site:
<http://academic.uofs.edu/department/psych/sheep/>

Please view at least the initial 10 slides of the dissection, to give you some familiarity with the structures (there is a +/- label key; press this to have labels of brain structures appear on the screen). You will be going through a similar dissection, looking for similar brain structures, so viewing these slides will be good preparation.

We also ask that you familiarize yourself with the sheep brain dissection guide handed out to you during the first lecture. Reading this through carefully will make your dissection go more smoothly (you won't accidentally cut something incorrectly and destroy part of the brain) and more efficiently (you'll spend less time figuring out where to cut, and more time identifying important brain structures).

You will be given a short quiz at the end of your sheep brain dissection.
