

Scientific American* Update: Proposal

- Many of you will want to find and read at least one more journal article (research report) on your topic—one that will help you round out your update. (Especially true for those whose current articles do not work well together.
 - Bring a copy of at least one research report to class on Session 16.
- Read any additional background material that you need to prepare for your Scientific American update. (News articles, biographical information on researchers) Include this material in the list of materials that accompanies your Update proposal.
- Write up a proposal for your Scientific American Update (150-200 words):
 - Here is what I plan to cover and how I plan to organize my Update.
 - Here are the materials that I plan to use: a potential works cited list.
