Hi.

I'm John, and I'll be leading the recitation this week.

We'll be using pooling data from the months leading up to a presidential election to predict that election's winner.

We'll go over how to build logistic regression models in R, how to select the variables to include in those models, and how to evaluate the model predictions.

Let's get started.